The SkyDome Sold To Private Sector

After two years of complex negotiations, The SkyDome in Toronto has been purchased from the Province of Ontario by a group of private investors. The purchase price for The SkyDome was $151 million, with net proceeds to the province totalling about $134 million. The finalization of the agreement took two years because of complex negotiations with CN Real Estate, the 28 private companies originally associated with SkyDome, the City of Toronto and Metropolitan Toronto. The group that purchased the facility includes Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Coca-Cola Ltd., Controlled Media Investments Inc., Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd., The Sports Network, Toronto Sun Publishing Corp. and a group of Canadian pension funds. All the companies are equity investors, with the exception of Ford and Coke, which are participating for the marketing value of the stadium. Richard Peddie will continue as president of SkyDome, and the chairman of the new SkyDome group is Senator Trevor Eyton. George Taylor is deputy chairman. Both Eyton and Taylor have a long association with the stadium. "SkyDome has succeeded beyond our wildest dreams as a sports and entertainment venue and as a showcase for Canadian design and technology," Taylor said. "We will continue with the same management team and the same operating philosophy."

Taking A Gamble On The Meadowlands

Financier Robert Brennan offered to buy the Meadowlands sports complex, which includes Giants Stadium, Brendan Byrne Arena and the Meadowlands racetrack, for $1 billion. But the offer is on the condition that New Jersey voters approve a constitutional amendment to allow gambling at the site. Under Brennan's proposal, his company International Thoroughbred Breeders Inc. would develop casino gaming, horse racing, restaurants and entertainment complexes at the Meadowlands and at Garden State Park race track, which ITB already owns. The proposal's foundation is based on developing 12 riverboat gaming parlors to be moored on manmade channels along each of the race tracks' backstretches, however the casinos would not operate at the Meadowlands when NFL football games and other major events are scheduled at Giants Stadium. Brennan believes that New Jersey should approve gambling outside of Atlantic City because of proposals to develop casinos in Philadelphia and New York City. "It's no longer a question of whether or not New York and Pennsylvania will compete for New Jersey's racing, breeding and casino business," Brennan said. "The only question is whether New Jersey's citizens cross the rivers and contribute to New York and Pennsylvania [economies], or whether New Jersey will once again act quickly to save these vital interests and bring more revenues and more visitors to our state." He said the proposal would create an additional $2.5 billion in annual casino revenues, $240 million in direct annual tax revenues, and also create 14,000 new jobs. However, gaming analysts believe that political forces would be unlikely to support a constitutional amendment. And historically, Atlantic City casino operators have been against extending gambling to other parts of the state. Brennan's offer was accompanied by a $5 million cash deposit to the chairman of New Jersey's Sports & Exposition Authority.

POSSUM DIXON

Geographically, the scene that spawned Possum Dixon didn't exist too far from the hair extensions and spiked collars of the Sunset Strip. But the band's development into a major label act took a route that flew in the face of its more contrived musical peers on the strip. Rather than hopping on the latest musical trend and trying to ride it to a record deal, Possum Dixon developed a sound and presentation that's not likely to be mistaken for anything else. "I think the great bands that came out of L.A. are the ones that said, 'Fuck it, we're gonna be ourselves and do exactly what we want,'" singer/bassist Rob Zabrecky says.

With frustration born of corporate routine as a starting point, Possum Dixon mutated on the Los Angeles coffeehouse circuit from an exercise in silliness and chaos into its current, slightly more subdued, incarnation. And after eight hours of stamping mail each day, Zabrecky had plenty to get off his chest. "I had to be in Possum Dixon," he says. "I had no other option. I had a crappy job — I was working a 9-to-5er in a mailroom. I had health insurance, it was like $10 an hour with a couple of weeks off for a vacation if I wanted to, I stole my liquid paper and stuff like that. I needed a band to sing 'I hate work, I'm a mailroom clerk' [a line from a Possum Dixon song, 'Nerves']."

At the band's core were Zabrecky and guitarist Celso Chavez, who, legend has it, made his pre-Possum living driving strippers to private gigs. In 1989, they started bringing their offbeat act to obscure Southland venues like Bebop Records — a since-closed record store that featured live music — and Jabberjaw, which still exists. The band took its moniker out of desperation. A local publication was pressing for a name to publish for an upcoming gig, and Chavez saw murder suspect James "Possum" Dixon profiled on "America's Most Wanted." He blurted out the name to Zabrecky over the phone, and it stuck.

The line between the crowd and the band was a thin one at first. Zabrecky and Chavez weren't afraid to venture into the audience, and the crowd didn't hesitate to join the band. "If you could play a trumpet, you could get onstage and play the trumpet," Zabrecky says of the early gigs. "If you decided to jump around and wanted to be in a band, you could be in our band. So we went through a lot of disposable band members — like one-show band members. It was a great outlet at the time. It's still a great outlet."

First guitarist/pianist Robert O'Sullivan, then drummer Richard Treuel, made the jump from fans of Possum Dixon to full-fledged band members. With that pair added to the lineup, there was a solid musical backing to anchor the other antics that took place onstage.

Since the group was unable to afford a practice space, its early rehearsals took place on the sly in a satellite warehouse owned by Zabrecky's employer (which he still won't name, since the now-defunct company spent lots of time and money investigating the sudden jump in electric bills). Between its frequent covert rehearsals and performing a few times a week, it didn't take long for Possum Dixon to hone its sound, build a local following and move from the coffeehouse circuit to the clubs.

Eventually, Interscope got wind of the band. "We were playing three or four times a week in Los Angeles, and we weren't scouting any sort of record deal or anything like that," Zabrecky says. "They came along and said, 'What is Possum Dixon?' And we told them. And the next day they said, 'Let's put this on an album.'" Very simple and straightforward, and there was no other label, no bidding war or anything."

After the release of its self-titled debut last year, Possum Dixon hit the road in support of The Dead Milkman, headlining a few dates along the way. The group is currently on the road with Reverend Horton Heat on a tour which has dates set through early May. "In some ways, I compare it to being a door-to-door vacuum cleaner salesman or something," Zabrecky says of life on the road. "We're going into each town, we're pulling out our amps — which would be like our vacuum — and demonstrating our songs with much more chaos and madness than a vacuum cleaner salesman." Zabrecky stops mid-thought and reconsiders. "Probably," he says. "Depending on the salesman, I guess. Then we pack up our shit and we leave and do it in the next town." Though he quickly found out that bringing Possum Dixon's show from town to town isn't all fun, Zabrecky promised himself early on that he'd never complain about it. "I bitched about what my job was like and what kind of job I had, and this beats the hell out of stamping mail by light years," he says.

As Zabrecky puts it, there's "still a little chaos" to Possum Dixon's performances. "Every night there's something new that happens onstage," he says. "We leave a couple of slots open where we say, 'Okay, now we're gonna play this song and there's gonna be a section in the middle where Celso might play his trumpet. Or I might sing Madonna songs in a medley form. Or I might take my whip out and whip someone in the audience or something.' It's still an outlet that we have to keep open."

Zabrecky is still somewhat in awe of the fact that he's making a living doing what he's almost always wanted to do. "Ever since I was, like, maybe 9 years old and I was playing air guitar to Cheap Trick albums in their entirety, that's what I did best," Zabrecky says. "And usually when my sister caught me with a tennis racquet jumping and bouncing off the walls to KISS records, I wasn't that embarrassed. I kind of knew rock and roll was for me."

Electric Artists handles the booking for Possum Dixon through May 15th, after which Phil Ernst at ICM takes over the duties. "Earlier, we were doing small bar scenes and the club tours," Zabrecky says. "It was just small, and we were looking for something a little more adventurous, for bigger tours. Someone like ICM seemed really good." The band is managed by J. Scavo Artist Management.

him from performing under the "Survivor" name. Jim Peterik and Frank Sullivan, who formed Survivor in 1977 and are currently booked by Paradise Artists, claim Jimi Jamison is performing under the band's name unlawfully. Jamison was in the band between 1984 and 1988, after original vocalist David Bickler's throat illness prevented him from singing, according to the suit. Bickler sang on four Survivor albums — including the hit Eye of the Tiger — and has since rejoined the group, according to the suit.

The Juno Awards

The annual salute to Canadian music, the 1994 Juno Awards, were presented at a ceremony March 20th by the Canadian Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences. And the night belonged to The Rankin Family, which took home awards in four categories including Canadian entertainer of the year, single of the year, and country group of the year. Other top winners included The Bodyguard soundtrack featuring Whitney Houston for best selling album (foreign or domestic); Neil Young's Harvest Moon for album of the year; Celine Dion for female vocalist of the year; Roch Voisine for male vocalist; Jann Arden for best new solo artist; The Waltons for best new group, and Rush was inducted into the Hall Of Fame. During the earlier Canadian Music Week gathering, several industry awards were also given out. CPI was named promoter of the year while Elliot Lefko of MCA Concerts Canada was named talent buyer of the year. Best concert venue went to Massey Hall in Toronto while best nightclub went to the Commodore Ballroom in Vancouver. S.L. Feldman's Steve Herman was named agent of the year and Tragically Hip manager Jake Gold was took management honors.

Oscar Rocks 'N' Rolls

For the first time in 66 years, a rock 'n' roll songwriter was honored at Hollywood's most prestigious of events — the Academy Awards — when Bruce Springsteen went home with the Oscar for best original song. Springsteen performed his award winning song, "Streets of Philadelphia," which was written for the movie "Philadelphia," at the March 21st awards ceremony. In his acceptance speech, Springsteen said he should share the honor with Neil Young, who also was nominated and performed his own song from the same film.

made the nuptials but Barbara did not..... PolyGram has purchased a Russian record company. Biz Enterprises, a Russian multimedia group, sold its recording and music publishing businesses to the Dutch entertainment giant for an undisclosed pile of rubles. PolyGram says its purchase makes Biz the first Russian subsidiary of a Western recording company..... At least two people were hurt on March 22nd when hundreds of fans tried to force their way into a Southfield, Mich., record store where Tevin Campbell was signing autographs. Nearly 1,000 fans turned out for the R&B star's autograph session at a Musicland store in Northland Mall. When store employees lowered an exterior security gate to restrict access, some fans pushed against the gate and others tried to dive under it to get into the store, witnesses said..... The 75-year-old Peony Park in Omaha will close for good on March 31st and the new owners of the former amusement park will use the site to build apartments and stores.

Old Outlaws In The Studio

Travis Tritt is joined in the studio by Waylon Jennings and Hank Willams Jr. during the recording of "Old Outlaws Like Us," a track from Tritt's upcoming album, "Ten Feet Tall and Bulletproof." The Tritt album and an autobiography of the same name are due out in May.*

Wreck Sidelines Laurie Lewis & Grant Street

Laurie Lewis and a member of her band Grant Street were injured in a serious traffic accident on March 14th in Arizona. Lewis suffered a fractured cranium, fractured vertebrae in her neck and lacerations. She was released from the hospital on March 18th. Band member Tom Rozum remained hospitalized last week with multiple fractures including hip, elbow, wrist and knee injuries. Bass player Jerry Logan was also in the van, but was not hurt. All the band's dates through mid-April have been cancelled.

Politician Running On Empty

A promotional campaign scheme in Arizona backfired when U.S. Senate hopeful and current Secretary of State Dick Mahoney distributed copies of Jackson Browne's set list outside of Browne's concert at Arizona State University in Tempe March 20th. Once Browne took the stage at Gammage Auditorium, he made certain the audience knew that he didn't endorse the politician, and he was angry about the ploy. The crowd's reaction reportedly confirmed that the stunt wasn't such a good idea. The set list was compiled from earlier shows and is not the kind of thing artists like to see given out before a show, even without the political connotations.

He Didn't Start The Fire

Members of a Cleveland Fire Department rescue squad are feeling a little heat from their bosses after giving Billy Joel a lift to his local concert. The van Joel was riding in was involved in a minor accident March 17th about 20 miles south of Cleveland, and the helpful emergency techs pitched in by driving the Piano Man to the Richfield Coliseum in time for his show. But the department is concerned that the good deed took one of only four squads available that night out of the county in order to get Joel to the arena. The firefighters got autographs from Joel, who defended their actions as "a wonderful display of community spirit." The crew initially lied about why they left the county, telling dispatchers they were taking someone to a hospital.

Legal Griefs

The British band Suede settled its lawsuit with a Washington, D.C., folk singer who claimed he had been using the name "Suede" for several years in the United States. Now, in the tradition of the English Beat and the Charlatans U.K., Suede will be known as the London Suede in the U.S. only. The London Suede has plans to record its second album for Columbia this spring..... A judge in Los Angeles threw out Jack Sherman's lawsuit against the Red Hot Chili Peppers, ruling that the former Chili Pepper had waited too long after he was booted from the band to attempt to collect damages. Sherman, who was the second guitarist for RHCP, had claimed that he was wrongly kicked out of the band in 1985, but didn't bring suit until 1993. Sherman had contended he was unable to bring the case within the three-year limit because of debilitating childhood abuse that made him passive. He had earlier asked the judge to consider entertainers in a special class because they are so vulnerable to the predatory ruthless people in the music industry. But the judge didn't buy either argument and threw out the case March 22nd..... TV star David Hasselhoff filed a suit March 16th claiming Sony Music released the album Knight Lover without permission. Hasselhoff, who stars in the syndicated TV series "Baywatch" and formerly co-stared with a talking sports car in the "Knight Rider" series, claims the album is actually an unauthorized compilation recorded for Silver Blue Productions and Deco Associates. Hasselhoff never received money or any accounting for the recording, his attorney claimed. The attorney said he heard the record was "huge in Europe," but he has no idea how much money Hasselhoff is owed. Silver Blue and its owner, Joel Diamond, Deco, and Castle Records are also named in the suit..... Warner Bros. Records is trying to have a case heard in South Dakota rather than New York that alleges a photograph of a Oglala Sioux boy was used without permission on the cover of The Cult's Ceremony album. After the picture of their son appeared on the album in 1992, Jennifer Crazy Bear Dubray and Tom Dubray of Pine Ridge, S.D., filed suit in New York Supreme Court claiming the marketing campaign hurt them and exploited Native American culture. The Dubrays' attorney said the record company's motion should be denied because South Dakota's laws on image appropriation aren't as strict as New York's. Warner Bros. could face both civil and criminal penalties in New York, where the record company is based, the attorney said. But in South Dakota, only compensable and psychological damages could be recovered, according to the lawyer. Warner Bros. thinks the case should be heard in South Dakota because Eternity Dubray, the boy pictured in the photo, lives there..... The family of a man authorities say was shot and killed by Snoop Doggy Dogg's bodyguard last year has filed a $25 million wrongful death suit against Snoop, Interscope, Time Warner and several other entities. The family of the slain man, Philip Woldemariam, allege the defendants were negligent in hiring a bodyguard who acted recklessly. The family says they are upset at the portrayal of their relative as a violent gangster who stalked the rapper. Snoop is accused of driving the car from which McKinley Lee, his bodyguard, allegedly shot and killed the man. Both men, who claim the shooting was in self-defense, remain free on $1 million bail.

Grand Jury Probes Continue In MJ's Case

The Los Angeles and Santa Barbara grand jury investigations of the sexual molestation accusations brought against Michael Jackson continue to move ahead. MJ's former private investigator, Anthony Pellicano, was called to testify before Santa Barbara's grand jury March 21st. Additionally, reports that Marlon Brando had testified the week before were denied by Brando's camp. Also last week, MJ's attorney Steve Cochran, in an attempt to get the photos of MJ's genitalia from the authorities, told a judge that the search warrant affidavit justifying the strip search and nude photography session was incomplete. Cochran said the search was constitutionally unreasonable, and he wants the court to invalidate the warrant so MJ can regain custody of the pix. Currently, the nude shots are in a safe deposit box in a California bank and only top law enforcement authorities have access to that box. Judge James M. Slater said he would consider supplying MJ's attorney with a complete affidavit of the search warrant during a hearing scheduled for April 11th.

Reckoning With Record Business Retirement

Dozens of record companies and the American Federation of Television & Radio Artists have asked a judge to throw out a case filed by a group of rock music's early stars, who claim they were cheated out of retirement benefits. The companies and union claim that those filing the suit — who include members of The Coasters, The Drifters, The Shirelles and The Rascals — have no evidence that record companies underreported to the union the income on which their AFTRA pensions were based. The defendants also claim that the singers never tried to settle the situation with the union before the suit was filed, as labor law requires. The musicians' attorney countered that his clients did try to resolve their complaints with AFTRA, and that he has ample evidence about how much each entertainer earned. In any case, he maintains that the burden of accounting should not rest with the musicians. According to court filings, Sam Moore of Sam & Dave was offered a choice of taking a $2,285 lump sum or $73 a month as a pension. Mary Wells died of throat cancer in 1992 and was poverty stricken after AFTRA refused to pay her medical benefits. Carl Gardner of The Coasters has accumulated a pension of just $3,331, according to documents filed by the plaintiffs' attorney. The artists are trying to give their suit class action status, which would add hundreds more artists to the case.

Mel And Some New Country Mavericks

Mel Gibson was in Nashville recently for the filming of a video for "Amazing Grace," which is on the upcoming "Maverick" soundtrack. The single's proceeds will go to the Pediatric AIDS Foundation.*

Pros On The Move

Vince Bannon was appointed VP of talent development at Sony Music, filling the post vacated when Missy Worth was promoted. Based in Santa Monica, Bannon will work closely with all the Sony Music labels to assist with touring plans for Sony artists. He will also function as a liaison with the labels' marketing and promotion departments to help create and implement campaigns to accompany tours. Bannon comes to Sony after 13 years as president of Ritual Inc., the concert production company he founded in Detroit in the early '80s.... MCA Music Entertainment Group chairman Al Teller has been given the added title of executive vice president of MCA Inc. and has inked a long-term agreement with the company..... Following a personal hiatus from the industry, former Palace Of Auburn Hills manager and talent buyer Tom Trzos says he's ready to get back into the business. He is now living in L.A. and can be reached at (619) 566-7036.

Rappers Cite Rough Police Treatment

Members of the RCA recording group Wu-Tang Clan issued a statement last week claiming they were victims of racial discrimination in San Francisco March 15th, when the van they were riding in was pulled over by the police. S.F. police approached the van with guns drawn, according to the group. The police then advised the four to get out of the van and lie on the ground, the statement said. The band claimed they complied but were handcuffed, their backs stepped on and their van searched. The four men were allegedly taken to the police station and held for 45 minutes without being told why they were originally pulled over. The band's statement said the police felt they had probable cause because the four men "fit the description of four black guys that wear knit caps and drive a van that are suspected of [robbing] stores in the area." "This experience was just another example of the arbitrary abuse and racism black men are subject to in this country, and a further reminder of how little progress has really been made," said group member Method Man. "Although we respect the fact that the police felt they had a job to do, the manner in which we were treated was totally uncalled for." The S.F. police said they had no comment on the incident, and a band rep indicated they don't plan to file any legal action.

Even Garth Brooks Might Be The Anti-Christ

Nearly 100 teenagers in Danville, Va., joined together to burn cassettes and CDs they considered anti-Christian. The teenagers, most of whom were from Southall Christian School, tossed Madonna, Janet Jackson, Ice-T, Megadeth and Guns N' Roses on the bonfire. And right along side the product from those "anti-God and anti-family" artists was the man known and loved as a down-home family kind of guy, Garth Brooks. The bonfire topped a week's worth of revivals led by traveling evangelist Tom Farrell and his Missouri-based Evangelistic Ministries.

Rockin' For The Right To Die

Mitch Ryder has written and recorded a song to support Dr. Jack Kevorkian's "right to die" campaign. Kevorkian recently shifted his efforts from helping suffering patients kill themselves to starting a petition drive for a Michigan constitutional amendment which would allow doctor assisted suicides. A portion of proceeds from the former Detroit Wheeler's new song, "Mercy," will go to support Kevorkian's efforts. "Dr. Death" himself gave the record a good review, saying that, "Even though I'm not up on popular music, I like this. It's got a lot of rhythm." Ryder's new album, Rite of Passage, was released March 21st in Europe but has to be special-ordered in the U.S.

Between The Dates

Finally, after being the subject of the most intense bidding wars in recent history, the dates and cities for the BARBRA STREISAND tour are locked down - at least for this week. Tickets went on sale March 27th for five markets; Detroit, DC, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New York. Tickets were sold through Ticketmaster's outlets and phone rooms. TM prexy Fred Rosen stated that the sales had to be conducted on a Sunday in order to avoid a disruption in local phone services. As with the New Year's Eve concerts and the upcoming London shows, each of the American dates will generate money for various charities. Even though the tour presently consists of only five cities and twelve shows, there was speculation that additional shows and perhaps a few more markets would be added to the tour. Both Chicago and Toronto are missing from the current schedule, but then that's more the rule than the exception. When the tour was announced last week it was stated that Streisand's schedule only allowed for the handful of performances. However, it must be pointed out that this all started with just two Las Vegas shows. And originally there were supposed to be only two London shows, but two more were added there. With tickets priced at $50, $125 and $350, the gross potential should be well in excess of $2 million per night, which might induce even Babs to add a few more shows..... Giant Records president / meteorologist Irving Azoff told POLLSTAR, "Hell has frozen over," which means THE EAGLES are officially back together. Don Henley, Glenn Frey, Joe Walsh, Don Felder, and Timothy B. Schmidt will kick off their tour May 27th at Irvine Meadows. See Route Book for the first 6 dates of the tour..... Remember that MATERIAL ISSUE headline tour we listed last week? Well, forget it. The band has signed on as support for the INXS tour..... Whoops! Last week we said the WOODSTOCK 25TH ANNIVERSARY CONCERT would take place in Bethel, New York on August 13th and 14th. Make that Saugerties, New York. Names being mentioned for this event include Guns N' Roses, Pearl Jam, Aerosmith, Stone Temple Pilots, Alice In Chains, Peter Gabriel, and the Red Hot Chili Peppers. We hear some major talent has been secured but no announcements will be made until all the proper permits have been secured. Meanwhile, promoter Sid Bernstein is planning a rival concert called Bethel '94 on the original 1969 Woodstock site, with John Sebastian, Richie Havens, Tom Paxton, and Judy Collins among the artists scheduled to appear..... There was a helluva tailgate party as about 1,500 Filipinos sat on mats and ate fried pig skin while Manila's upper crust paid up to 25,000 pesos ($910) to watch LUCIANO PAVAROTTI perform. Those left outside watched the concert for free on a huge video screen. The concert, originally scheduled for March 18th had to be postponed until the 21st when the massive tenor developed a cough. Pavarotti had been criticized by politicians who considered his pricey tickets to be an ostentatious extravagance for a poor country like the Philippines..... The Allman Brothers Band will reportedly be the headliners on this summer's H.O.R.D.E. TOUR. Blues Traveler and Big Head Todd & The Monsters may also be on this year's Horizons Of Rock Will Be Developing Everywhere tour, and like last year, Santana could appear on some dates..... When you consider all the musicians that have been members of YES over the last 26 years, one can be confused about the current lineup. This year's tour is the "Owner Of A Lonely Heart" quintet featuring Jon Anderson, Chris Squire, Tony Kaye, Alan White, and Trevor Rabin..... When we first spotted the WILLIAM SHATNER THEATRE on an itinerary, we knew we had to find out more about this venue. Montreal's McGill University officially refers to its student union and the theatre it contains as the University Center, but to the students it's the William Shatner University Center. Student Alex Usher, who spearheaded the 1992 referendum for the name change, told POLLSTAR that the university does not recognize the change, but through a referendum, the Student Society was allowed to call it anything it wants. Usher said when the '92 campus elections were held he and his roommates came up with naming the building after the Enterprise captain who graduated from McGill in 1952. Shatner has yet to beam down for a visit, but several artists have..... And for those of you looking ahead to next year, 1995 will bring us (finally) an R.E.M. tour. The group, which hasn't toured since 1989, plans to start in Europe and play North America in the summer.

POLLSTAR updates and verifies all ROUTE BOOK listings each week. The ARTIST INDEX refers to the issue date that an artist was last published. If an artist has not been updated after a month, their name is removed from the index. This method of updating assures our readers the very best available resource information at all times. All dates subject to change without notice.
